

About Alcione

(by Samael Aun Weor)

Please pay attention: You must be aware that The Age of Aquarius began on February 4, 1962.

You may remember very well that there was a "congress of worlds", of planets, that occurred precisely at the constellation of Aquarius; it was an authentic jam of celestial traffic, a meeting of worlds.

Then there was an eclipse of the sun and the moon.

We have been talking about this cosmic event for many years; we even gave the hour, saying it would happen on February 4, 1962, between 2pm and 3pm, which is exactly when it occurred... We had been saying this for 15 or 20 years, so when it happened, the brothers of the International Gnostic Movement were not taken by surprise; this just confirmed what had been anticipated.

A congress of worlds such as this does not happen very often; only at the beginning of a new age. So we have to surrender ourselves to the facts. However, that is not all. Since then, something else has started to happen. Web knows that Saturn and Uranus rule Aquarius. Saturn is symbolized in Alchemy by the black raven, which signifies regression to the primitive, original chaos. And Uranus, it is perfectly clear that it is a complete rebel, revolutionary and catastrophic. In these matters relating to the stars, there are events, which are really worth knowing about. Many things have been said about Alcione that invite us to reflect. Once, in the higher worlds, I came to investigate it widely. At this point I was able to know that Krishnamurti, who is an Adept of the Great White Fraternity, is related to that star in some way; this is profoundly significant.

Alcione is a very interesting sun. Many other suns circulate around it. It has been said that the sun, which shines upon us is the seventh sun revolving around Alcione. Naturally, the sages of official science will not admit this, whereas Web esoterics do not ignore the significant reality of this great sun. There exists a great game of worlds around Alcione; there are seven suns, each one illuminating and giving life to the planets and satellites that spin around its orbit. The sun that shines on us has its own group of worlds, which it illuminates, and to which it gives life.

When one understands the way the solar systems are organized and how they rotate around their gravitational centers, one can make great advances in knowledge.

The Pleyades are cited in the sacred scriptures, in the Bible and in many other esoteric teachings. Alcione is the principal sun of the Pleyades; it has seven suns, which rotate around it. Our sun is the seventh of these. Each sun represents the center of a solar system and Alcione represents the center of seven separate solar systems. This in itself invites us to meditate a little. Let us remember Saturn with its great ring of meteoric sand and stones. It is good to know that Alcione also has its own rings. They are far bigger than Saturn's, but the main difference is that instead of being made from meteoric dust, rocks and other materials, Alcione's rings form a whole and are radioactive in nature.

What kind of radiation is this? It results from the breaking up of electrons, which frees a kind of energy called "manasic energy" by some authors. This is a Sanskrit term that relates in some form to inferior manas or superior manas, that is, inferior mind or superior mind. These electrons release an unknown type of energy. If the intellectual animal, wrongly called man, could destroy the electrons as he destroyed the atom, this would cause a catastrophe affecting not only the Euclidean three-dimensional world, but reaching even further. This would affect the sephirotic realms of Hod, the world of emotions, or Netzach, the world of the mind; maybe even Tipheret, the world of natural causes. Even these regions would suffer serious consequences. If one crazy earth dweller could destroy the electron, this would result in a different energy than the one produced by the splitting of the atom; an energy even more terrible than that of the A bomb, or any other deadly element. Fortunately, scientists are not yet able of destroying the electron.

In Alcione there are some cases of fractured electrons releasing an unknown type of energy.

In 1974, three astronauts orbiting around earth gave information about a type of radiation unrecognized by official science. Since February 4, 1962, planet Earth, together with the entire solar system, has been on the verge of entering the terrible rings of Alcione. These rings are huge, extending for many light years. At any given moment, our solar system will enter the rings of Alcione, and very few can imagine what will happen. If Earth enters first, as Paul Otto Hess predicts, this would resemble a great fire in the skies, or pyrotechnic lights. If however the sun were to enter first, the radiation released would interfere with the solar rays; darkness would reign for 110 hours, after which everything would return to normal. In any case, the Earth, having entered Alcione's rings, will experience a very special vibration. The molecules of each element; iron; phosphorous, calcium, copper, nitrogen, carbon and so on, will be changed completely due to the radiation. And so, you see this will bring about a change in the structure of matter.

Scientists think they know about matter, but they don't really. The current concept regarding matter is just that, a concept and nothing more. Matter, as substance is completely unknown to physicists. Simple physical matter can be destroyed, but the substance itself, the famous Iliaster that has been residing in the darkness of deeper space since that Great Cosmic Night, is unknown to scientists.

Atoms offer many surprises. Scientists know nothing about them before the beginning of existence, and even less about what will happen to them when the Universe ceases to exist. Atoms present surprises that the scientists, the nuclear physicists, can hardly imagine. The atom possesses that which is called "Hachin" in Hebrew, igneous particles, or igneous souls. These igneous souls are formidable; without them, atoms could not process themselves in the constitution of living matter. And so, nobody truly knows the powers of, for example, a few grains of sand. The Hachin or igneous souls are contained within each atom. The great Magi of the East know how to work with these igneous particles. These atoms, impelled by the igneous particles, develop formidable powers, which modern scientists obviously don't even suspect exist. Don't be surprised then, when I tell you that the igneous or living radiation contained within Alcione's atoms can alter nature's molecules.

Earth will be completely enveloped by this radiation; this will be so terrible that there will be no nightfall for 2000 years. Earth will be entirely enveloped in this radiation, and sunlight will not even be necessary in order to see. This radiation will illuminate even the deepest caves, and for 2000 years there will be no nightfall. Just a long, continuous daytime.

It is written so, and the wisest men agree with this. Obviously, scientists will not accept our emphatic affirmations because these do not agree with their so-called scientific thought; however, it is real. The organism of every being will be modified; plants, animals and so on. Many plants that do not exist today, many animal species whose genetic matter is lying dormant, at the bottom of the sea, in the rocks or on the farthest mountains, will be brought to life by this radiation.

This cosmic event takes place every ten thousand years; it happened before and will happen again because it obeys to the laws of celestial traffic in this solar system, which has to pass through Alcione's rings. Some people may say that Alcione is very far away, that it is a Pleyade, which has nothing to do with our solar system. It is very nice to talk like that, but this reveals ignorance on the subject. The reality is that our Sun is part of Alcione; it is the seventh solar system rotating around Alcione.

The aforementioned event will last for 2000 years. The radiation emitted by Alcione's rings will specifically affect the rotation of our planet. This means that the rotation speed around its axis will slow down, and consequently our world will spin around the sun in a wider orbit; in other words, it will be situated further from the solar center.

The verticalness of our planet's axis, in relation to the ellipse, is certain to occur. The melting of the ice caps due to this deviation is already evident; we know that the magnetic pole no longer coincides with geographical poles. With Alcione's radiation, the poles will increase their deviation.

The Count St. Germain said that the first things to change would be the seasons of spring and summer. As we can see this year (1977), in the middle of spring we had to tolerate cold; the summer was also not a typical one. It seems that the seasons are doomed to disappear. The ice caps are also melting, and with Alcione's radiation, ice will spread through the north and the south; it will only be possible to live in the equatorial zone. A new glacial epoch will occur. There will be a terrible change in nature. Besides this will be the arrival of Hercolubus; the presently known continents will be submerged and new continents will be formed. Before this, however, our planet will enter Alcione's rings; at this point we will come to understand that physical matter is not constant.

If you believe that the physical matter forming our world has always had the same mathematical formulae, you are mistaken. It was different in the Polar age, in the Hyperborean, in the Lemuric and Atlantean ages. Now, when we pass through Alcione's rings, the mathematical formulae of matter will change completely.

The elements used today in medicine will not be useful any longer. Formulas used to treat vegetables and animals will become completely out-dated. All present knowledge of physics and chemistry will become redundant, as chemical formulae will change. Once again, we will be witnesses to the law of the pendulum.

We must not be surprised if, at any moment, our solar system enters Alcione's rings; we must start to prepare ourselves now. Many will not stand up to the radiation and will die. Physical matter will become more radioactive and phosphorescent, and this will help our work. Of course, we must become more reflective, more careful with our criticisms and particularly with our negative emotions. Psychologically speaking, we have seen a considerable amount of disorder among people. Everyone is being overtaken by negative emotions and this is extremely serious. There is nothing worse for our inner development than negative emotions. When you are overtaken by a negative emotion, try to express it in the best way possible. If envy comes to us, we must express it in a harmonious way; that is to say not to favor the envy but rather the other person. If anger upsets us, we must speak with sweetness; instead of feeling hurt, let us speak favorably of the one whom has offended us, so that we won't be hurt inside. It is not so easy to express oneself well when feeling negative, but this must be done.

We must not, however remain on the surface. We must work to eliminate those undesirable psychological elements which exist in our inner nature and produce negative emotions, anger, envy, hate, pride, self-love, vanity, lust and so on.

This world of 48 laws is about to enter Alcione's rings. Everyone is being overwhelmed by negative emotions, which are highly contagious. Negative emotions in negative people are more contagious than any virus. A negative person can infect others with negative emotions. In our work, we isolate such people. They don't understand; they feel hurt, that they are not loved. We love them, implying that they should be more positive, sympathetic, magnetic. We pay attention to them, but they remain isolated because they are dangerous to groups. A negative person has the ability to contaminate others. If he gives a lecture, he can contaminate thousands of people with negative emotions. Such negative people are much more dangerous than any virus.

An angry, vociferous person infects others with his anger. If a person involved in esotericism feels himself to be bewitched or persecuted he is a negative person, who will contaminate others. This is also obviously true for the lustful, passionate person; one who sees a sexual opportunity in any person of the opposite sex.

This is a serious matter. It is very important that we do not let ourselves be overtaken by negative emotions.

We want to be able to visit, or penetrate the sephirotic regions of Space. It is one thing to perceive a Sephirot; to penetrate it is a completely different matter. The Sephirots are atomic and we the Gnostics have to penetrate The Tree of Life. We should know that there are various sephirotic regions in space and it is marvelous to penetrate them. How can we enter Hod's cabalistic realm if we do not have a psychological body? We must create a second body for superior emotions; negative emotions prevent us from experiencing Reality and the inner growth of the Self.

If we want to create a second body to penetrate Hod' sephirotic realm, it is clear that we must not waste our energies, being overtaken by the negative emotions of violence, hate, jealousy, pride, etc. If we spend all our energies on inferior emotions we will have nothing left to create our psychological body.

To create a psychological body it is necessary to save energies, so that we can explore these realms of Hod. It has been said that these immense regions are ruled by ineffable beings, the Beni-Elohim, the Sons of God that live in these vast and profound regions. Only those who save energies can penetrate the vast realm of Hod.

We must begin, then, by saving energies. When a negative emotion upsets us, we must try to know what kind of psychological dysfunction produced it and, after observing it in action, we must submit it to the meditation technique in order to destroy the undesirable element.

The most serious point however, is that negative emotions turn people into liars. The lie produces a false connection because the energy of The Elder of the Days flows harmoniously through the ten Sephiroth until it reaches Malkhut, the Kingdom, the physical or psychological person. The liar connects himself wrongly, producing an intentional deviation of his mind. One can become a liar because of a negative emotion that makes one speak in a slanderous way, or one can lie consciously. In any case, a false connection will be made between the mind and the superior centers of the Self.

We must always tell the truth, at any cost. To tell the truth, nothing but the truth; this is the basic reality of facts. Negative emotions turn people into liars. The Karma of the liar is his deformity; children are born with deformed bodies as a result of a false connection with the higher centers of the Self. When we have formed a second psychological body that enables us to enter the sephirotic realms of Hod, the lies and the falseness will become evident. Michael is the ruler of this Sephirot, and he shines brightly in this realm. How can we explore these realms, however, if we are liars; victims of negative emotions? This, of course, is impossible.

How can we explore the region of Netzach if we are not correctly connected with the higher centers of the Self? To explore the region of Netzach we need to have created a mental psychological body. None who lets himself be overtaken by negative emotions can create this psychological body. In some cases there is not even enough energy to create an individual mind, which can then permit one to explore the psychological regions of the universal mind.

To explore the realms of Hod and Netzach, we need to learn to tell the truth constantly; none who lets himself be overtaken by negative emotions can tell the truth.

We need to obey the Father; a negative person cannot do this. The Father is the Truth, and nothing but the Truth. To obey the Father, the connections must be perfect. We must learn to connect with the Father in a correct and harmonious way. Deep within all of us is the Elder of the Days, although very few of us know how to obey him. None can act on the Will of the Father if he lies, if he is overwhelmed by negative emotions. And so, my dear brothers, we need to learn how to live wisely. We need to learn to explore ourselves, to observe ourselves correctly.

We are now entering an extraordinary period. The great selection has begun; not all humans inhabiting the Earth will be suitable for sowing the seeds of the great future sixth race - the Koradi race - that will exist in the Earth's future golden age.

As the Earth enters Alcione's rings, our Great Work, as we have been teaching it, will become much clearer.
